CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

The civil service reform policy of President Hayes is very unpopular with all those congressmen who depend on Federal office-holders for setting their nominations and managing their campaigns. It is also very unpopular with all those hard-working wire-pullers who expected to be rewarded for their arduous labors in 1870, and were not.

Most of the republican leaders in congress, and the manipulators of the political wires at home, are bitterly opposed to the civil service order of President Hayes. Their first complaint was, that it disfranchised 50,000 Federal office-holders. As this complaint had no effect, they commenced to ridicule it, claiming that Attorney General Devens' letter to Massachusetts last fall and the recent explanation of the order by President Hayes were concessions to the "machine" politicians, and a gradual descent from the high impracticable ground which Mr. Hayes first took to the practical common-sense view of the politician.

As these charges of inconsistency have been so freely and frequently made it may not be uninteresting if we publish the original order of President Hayes, the letter of Judge Devens, and the subsequent explanation of President Hayes.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, June 22, 1877.

I desire to call your attention to the following paragraph in a letter addressed by me to the secretary of the treasury, on the subject to be observed by the officers of the general government in relation to the elections:

"No officer should be required or permitted to take part in the management of political organizations, caucuses, conventions or election campaigns. Their right to vote and to express their views on public questions, either orally or through the press, is not denied, provided it does not interfere with the discharge of their official duties. No assessment for political purposes on officers or subordinates should be allowed."

This rule is applicable to every department of the civil service. It should be understood by every officer of the general government that he is expected to conform his conduct to its requirements.

Very respectfully,

R. B. HAYES.

Attorney General Devens, writing from Washington on October, excusing himself from active participation in the Massachusetts state campaign, says:

"I learn with surprise and regret that any of the republican officials hesitate either to speak or vote, alleging as a reason the president's recent civil service order. In distinct terms that order states that the right of officials to vote and express their views on public questions, either orally or through the press, is not denied, provided it does not interfere with the discharge of their official duties. If such gentlemen choose not to vote, or not to express or enforce their views in support of the principles of the republican party, either orally or otherwise, they, at least, should give a reason for such a course, which is not justified by the order referred to, and which is simply a perversion of it."

A few weeks ago Representative Campbell talked with him about his civil service order. Mr. Hayes gave the following explanation of it, and his views on the subject in general. We quote the following from the New York Tribune:

The executive order alluded to was designed to let faithful officers understand that their duty of allegiance is to the government and its interests, and not to parties. That is now very generally understood, but as to continuing a reasonable share out of their incomes to meet the expenses of the campaign, there can be no objection to that. It cannot be demanded under pain of removal as hitherto; any officer may give or not, as he pleases, without affecting his tenure of office."

And, as to the personal participation of federal officers in the campaign, there can and will be no objection to this unless they are used to promote the personal interests of certain individuals through the manipulation of the party machinery. Once-holders ought not to interfere so as to pervert the wishes of the people and subject republicans to the alternative of voting for obnoxious candidates or submitting to party defeats. The order forbidding officers of the government to participate in this sort of thing will be vigorously enforced, but after the candidates are fairly in the field without the aid of convention-packed with office-holders acting at the beck of the dominant clique of politicians, there will be no objection if federal office-holders do their share of the work, so long as it does not interfere with their official duties.

We respectfully submit that no unprejudiced person can find any inconsistency in the three quotations given above. The original order contains three important prohibitions, which may be stated as follows:

First, no officer shall be allowed to participate in caucuses or conventions, or in other words do anything before the candidates are nominated.

Second, no officer shall be allowed to be a member of a political organization, or act as chairman or secretary of the same committee, etc.

Third, no assessment on officers for political purposes shall be allowed.

All these prohibitions are still in force. The reason for making them is obvious to anyone who has watched the evils growing up in our civil service since the days of Jackson.

In regard to the first prohibition we think the explanation of President Hayes, very explicit when he says office-holders shall not be allowed to "promote the personal interests of certain individuals through the manipulations of party machinery," etc., to over-rule the wishes of the people and compel them to vote for obnoxious candidates.

This thing has been done again and again in New York, when objectionable men have been nominated to office by conventions packed with office-holders acting at the beck of the dominant clique of politicians. Under the old system the seven thousand office-holders of New York state owed personal allegiance to Senator Conkling in almost precisely the same sense as the lesser feudal lords owed allegiance to their suzerain. Their continuance in office depended more on their loyalty to some politician than to the ability with which they discharged their duties. Skill in "pulling the wires" was often considered a more important requisite in a candidate than integrity of character and ability to discharge the duties of the office. The evil was that men received and continued in office for rendering certain services to certain persons, instead of the government. This first prohibition forbade their rendering the most objectionable of these services.

The reason for making the second prohibition is easily explained when the campaign of 1876 is remembered. One of the highest officers in our government, occupying a position of great responsibility, spent three months in New York city, entirely removed from his official duties, in managing the campaign for the republican party. During this time the government was paying him a salary of eight thousand dollars per year, and for what? For running an election in behalf of a party. The chairman and secretaries of the republican state committees, without hardly an exception, were office-holders. This second prohibition forbade these office-holders that rendered their services to the government for their pay, and not to political parties.

The third provision will everywhere be recognized as eminently just. No assessment shall be made, but any office-holder may give if he wishes to give. The old method of making an assessment of ten percent was simply making the government pay the expenses of the campaign. A man, whose salary was nominally $1,200, knew that he was to receive only $1,080, and that the rest would go into the campaign fund of the dominant party. Those republicans who believe the party exists for the government, and not the government for the party, have no trouble in seeing the justice and necessity of this order.

In the congressional caucus a few weeks ago Senator Sargent said the salvation of the republican party demanded that the 50,000 office-holders in this country should actively engage in managing and supporting the campaign this fall. This is the belief of a few others, we are sorry to say.

The party of great moral ideas, the party of Lincoln, Sumner and Greeley, depends for its existence on the bread-and-butter brigades. How are the mighty fallen! We think, however, that if its salvation depends on this, we had better let it die. The democratic party in 1876 gave us a close rub, to say the least, and yet they had no office-holders to help them.

Is not our history as inspiring, our record as pure, our principles as sound and our loyalty as true as theirs? Far more so. Then let us appeal to and confidently rely on them for success.

There is a balance of $9,316,120 of the Geneva award in the treasury. It is proposed to have all remaining claims adjudicated by the court of claims allowing the claimant the right of appeal to the supreme court.

It will be noticed in our dispatches of yesterday that the syndicate has just taken $5,000,000 more bonds. Secretary Sherman now has about $50,000,000 in coin in the treasury for resumption purposes exclusively. And yet we suppose Ewing & Co. will still make impotent efforts to defeat resumption.

Hon. Fernando Wood has given up all hopes of securing the passage of his tariff bill this session. There is no subject which demands more urgent consideration on the part of congress than that of our tariff laws. Mr. Wood's bill must be a very bad one if it is worse than the present tariff law.

Secretary McCrary is not frightened by the Florida revelations. He says: "If it were possible to enter into a thorough and impartial investigation of all the charges and counter-charges of frauds, violence, and intimidation in connection with the presidential election of 1876, the result would, in my judgment, prove to be eminently satisfactory to the republican party."

The Sing-Away Bird.
O say, have you heard of the sing-away bird?
That sings where the Runaway River Runs down with its rills from the bald-headed hills.
That stands in the sunshine and shiver?
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
How the phoe and the birches are stirred
By the trill of the sing-away bird!
And the bald-headed hills, with their rocks and
their rills,
To the tune of his rapture are singing.
And their faces grow young, all their gray mists amoving.
While the forests break forth into singing.
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
And the river runs singing along,
And the flying winds catch up the song.
It was nothing but "hush! a wild white throated thrush,
That emptied his musical quiver.
With a "hain-and-a-spell over valley and dell
On the banks of the Runaway River."
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
Ver the song of the wild singer had
The sound of a soul that is glad.
And, beneath the gladsome song, a glad hearted one
Set the world to the tune of his gladness.
The rivers shall sing to the breeze, shall sing to
The hills shall forget its long sadness.
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
Sing, spirit, who knowest joy's Giver,
Sing on, by the Runaway River,
Lucy Larcom, St. Nicholas for May.

Without a comfort by its side;
The sun may sleep in his sea bed,
But you have starlight overhead.

The praises of others may be of use, in teaching us, not what we are, but what we ought to be. "Luther's Works." The beginning of faith is action, and he only believes who struggles; not he who merely thinks a question over. "Carlyle." It was Carlyle who said: "Make yourself an honest man, and then you may be sure that there is one rascal less in the world."
Every person has two educations: one which he receives from others, and one, more important, which he gives himself.
"Gordon."
It is not the fact that a man has riches which keeps him from the kingdom of heaven, but the fact that riches make him.
"Dr. Caird." Men grow weaker by every consent to wrong, stronger by every resistance to wrong. "Establishment in virtue is the product of every practice of virtue." One of the saddest things about human nature is that a man may guide others in the path of life, without walking in it himself; that he may be a pilot and yet a casualty. "John Ruskin." The faults of a fool are concealed from himself, while they are evident to the world; on the other hand the faults of the wise man are well known to himself, while they are masked over and invisible to the world.
Christian faith is a grand cathedral, with divinely pictured windows. Standing without, you see no glory, nor can possibly imagine any; standing within, every ray of light reveals a harmony of unspeakable splendors. "Hawthorne."
As the tree is fertilized by its own broken branches and falling leaves, and grows out of its own decay, so men and nations are bettered and improved by trial, and rejoice in their broken hopes and blighted expectations. "J. H. Roush.".
Conscience is your magnetic needle.
Reason is your chart. But I would rather have a crew willing to follow the indications of the needle, and giving themselves needle at all. "Joseph Cook." It is assumed that there is nothing more tractable than the human mind. You need but will, and it is done, it is set right; as, on the contrary, you need but nod over the work, and it is ruined. For both ruin and recovery are from within. "Epictetus."

worth much. "Hagenson."
No telescope will enable us to see God.

no study of physical forces, no search after the one primary force can bring us a "hand-breath nearer God." Science, in the obedience of our spiritual powers, attains not to God. "Dr. Alford Campbell." The merely solemn ministers are very empty, and deserve all that has been heaped upon them of contempt through all the ages. "If you are afraid of men and a not what God sent you to declare, but what they hire you to say. "Phillips."

Rifle Bullets Seen in their Flight.
The fact that human eyes, with the aid of a field glass, have seen rifle bullets during their flight from the muzzle of the rifle to the point at which they were aimed, has been published, we believe, several times; but we have never seen, to our knowledge, the announcement that they could be seen with the naked eye. Yet it is a well-attested fact that rifle bullets were seen in their flight by several gentlemen, without the aid of a glass or anything of the kind, on the morning of this city, one day last week.
A high wind was blowing and showers were frequent; in fact it rained almost constantly. When the spectators stood on one side of the shooter they could only follow the ball to the highest point of the arc which it described, but when they stood immediately behind the shooter (the lying down and they standing up), they could follow the bullet from a point about ten feet from the muzzle, and all the way to the target of whatever object it struck.
One gentleman told the shooter, immediately after he had fired, that he had shot too much to the right, and the signal of the marker a minute or two afterward confirmed exactly what he had said. The balls were seen while the shooters were firing at 300 yards distance. The rifles were of the heavy military kind, which carry a large bullet. Those who saw the bullets in their flight say that the description of them is immense at that distance, and that they also appear to curve to the right as well as up and down.

The Beauty and Splendor.
After breakfast I proceeded to take a general view of the city. It is the strangest sight I have ever seen. Here is a church green all over, with a picture of some saints above the door. Next to it is a little dark shop where icons, and lamps are sold. A little farther on is a narrow, sombre passage, running through to the next street, with shops opening into it, where all sorts of small wares are exhibited. The proprietor stands at the door and recommends his goods to the passerby. At the end of the street is the Kremlin, that wonderful remnant of barbaric splendor. If you stand and look at it, as I did, under a dull March sky, the sharp little snowflakes pelt you fiercely in the face, with melting snow under foot and a general nastiness and sloppiness all about you, you will be moved to a sort of wonder that these high white walls, these queer-colored domes, and roofs, and all this strange architecture could ever be admired by any but a savage race. But go to the same point of view on a clear day, after a snow storm, when the ground is white and clean, when the sun scintillates on the delicate tracery of the crosses which surmount the domes, when the domes themselves take deeper shades of blue and green and gold and gray, then you will appreciate better the real beauty which underlies all this apparent barbarity.
Entering the Holy Gate, which is nothing remarkable to look at, given one, not excepting the Czar, must uncover his head. From the walls of the Kremlin there is a magnificent view of the city.
Raised so high above it, the squalor and dirt do not stare one in the face, and the hundreds of minarets and spires, and crosses, all brightly colored, and the green roofs of the houses with the low range of the Sparrow hills on one side, across which the French army marched, and from where Napoleon got his first view of Moscow, form a very beautiful picture. The first thing to visit inside the Kremlin is the church where the emperors are crowned. From the first Romanoff down to the present Alexander II., the coronation ceremony has taken place in this same church, on this same platform in the center of the building. The cathedral is more than rich.
It is literally glittering with gold and silver and jewels. There is not one square inch in floor, or ceiling, or walls, which is unornamented. The screen at the back of the altar is of solid gold. The icons have necklaces, and tiaras of diamonds, emeralds and pearls. The chandeliers are of silver. The walls are covered with paintings and mosaic work of Siberian marbles. Splendor gleams from every corner. No words can express the richness of this church. It is said that all the wealth of all the Russias could not buy the contents of this one little building.
But for quaintness, barbarity and beauty combined, the church of St. Basil is unequaled. It stands outside of the Kremlin walls, near the Holy Gate. It is a low building, with eleven queer, mushroom-shaped domes, each painted a different color. Under every dome is a chapel dedicated to some saint. Dark, narrow passages lead from one chapel to the other.
Here is displayed the same richness of ornamentation as in the cathedral, gold, silver and jewels everywhere. There is a legend attached to the church, which was repeated to me no less than five times by as many different people. It was built by an Italian architect, in the reign of John the Terrible. When it was completed, the Czar called the architect before him and inquired if it was possible for him to build anything more beautiful. The Italian replied that it was; whereupon the Czar ordered his eyes to be put out. This story, like many others which are told of John the Terrible, lacks proof. "Christian Science Monitor."

do not give away
ready-made clothing
ONLY TO THE DESTITUTE.
The reputation this house bears for strict honesty and attention to business is such as to challenge the admiration of all who favor them with their patronage, while their facilities for doing business in a satisfactory manner are unsurpassed by any firm west of the Mississippi. It is a common remark that
E. LEONARD & CO.
Are among the leading clothiers of the state, and that their prices are always so reasonable that persons once trading with them think of going no where else.
Their success is due in a great measure to the points above noted; but another fact should also be mentioned in this communication, to-wit: They purchase their goods by the car-load, pay cash, and get the best bargains to be had in the great wholesale market. Their prices are always on the look out for special rock-bottom bargains, and they are thus prepared always to take advantage of the "cheer."
This policy is in to all COATS,
PANTS,
VESTS,
OVERCOATS!
SUITS,
RUBBER
GOODS, Furnishing
Goods,
Hats, Caps,
STRAW GOODS,
TRUNKS,
VALISES.
So low that customers can pay for them, and thus retain their own self-respect.
Owing to the immense stock they have just received and that is yet to come, this firm has found it necessary to greatly enlarge their quarters, and to this end have secured the rooms above their own and the adjoining stores.
RISKS.
Any person living within an area of one hundred miles from Colorado Springs runs a risk if he buys his ready-made clothing at any other house than that of
E. LEONARD & CO.
Never in their past history was this Old Reliable Firm so well prepared to supply all the demands of the people for new, neat, and elegant spring and summer suits. Every department is replete with all the novelties of the season, and at prices never before known in the annals of the clothing trade in this city.
They make no misrepresen-tations. Never were they better prepared to prove the truth of the assertion than at present.

The Sing-Away Bird.
O say, have you heard of the sing-away bird?
That sings where the Runaway River Runs down with its rills from the bald-headed hills.
That stands in the sunshine and shiver?
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
How the phoe and the birches are stirred
By the trill of the sing-away bird!
And the bald-headed hills, with their rocks and
their rills,
To the tune of his rapture are singing.
And their faces grow young, all their gray mists
amoving.
While the forests break forth into singing.
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
And the river runs singing along,
And the flying winds catch up the song.
It was nothing but "hush! a wild white throat-
ed thrush,
That emptied his musical quiver.
With a "hain-and-a-spell over valley and dell
On the banks of the Runaway River."
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
Ver the song of the wild singer had
The sound of a soul that is glad.
And, beneath the gladsome song, a glad hearted
one
Set the world to the tune of his gladness.
The rivers shall sing to the breeze, shall sing to
The hills shall forget its long sadness.
"O sing! sing away! sing away!"
Sing, spirit, who knowest joy's Giver,
Sing on, by the Runaway River,
Lucy Larcom, St. Nicholas for May.

MAY 3, 1878.

Official Paper of the City of Colorado Springs.

Mr. T. A. Donaldson, "read" the "Penny" of the GAZETTE office, to a substantial lunch last evening.

We understand that H. A. McClure arrived at Denver last night and takes the train south this morning.

If you don't want E. J. Eaton after you just call at his office and make out a list of your personal and taxable property.

Have your prescriptions filled at Sigendott & Taylor's. They use none but the best of pharmaceutical preparations, viz. Sigendott's. Prescriptions filled at all hours of the night.

During the month of April $4,025.50 was received at the Colorado Springs post office for money orders, and $27,215.50 paid on orders drawn upon the office by other offices.

One of the features of the ball that we failed to mention in yesterday's issue was the Highland Fling, danced by Miss Onie Kiley. Her costume was very elegant and her execution of the dance is said to have been superb.

Sessler, the grocer, has just received a new cigar sign, which is a model of beauty. It represents an Indian maiden holding with one hand a box of cigars, and with the other a lighted taper for the accommodation of smokers.

The ladies of the Congregational society desire to express their thanks for the valuable assistance rendered by the following named parties, at their concert on the 25th ultimo: Miss Minnie Edwards, Mrs. Hattie Draper, and Messrs. E. J. Lake, M. E. Irving, R. W. Anderson and A. Hastic.

Election.

The election of a secretary of the school board, will take place at the public school house next Monday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock. We understand that Mr. E. J. Faxon will be a candidate in the office. Mr. E. J. Faxon, the present incumbent, declining a re-election.

Real Estate.

NATHANIEL Bishop Macbeath, O. W. Brewster, Denver; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Atherton, Boston; W. Lansing, C. I. Kent, Buffalo, N. Y.; Allen Lane and wife, Monument Park; Miss Blaisdell and daughter, L. A. Blaisdell, Frankfort, Mo.; Mr. J. A. Hart, city; M. J. Conner, Denver.

CRAWFORD, E. R. Hoyt, Beaver Dam, Wis.; Wm. A. McKinney, New York; J. G. Fungoban, Topeka, Kan.; H. P. Marston, R. Higgins, Denver; R. H. Halley, Kauch.

Death of H. V. Marchant, Jr.

Our community was startled yesterday by the report that Mr. H. V. Marchant was dead. The statement could hardly be credited from the fact that on the day previous he had been in his usual health. Investigation, however, proved that the report was only too true. His death yesterday morning, and proceeded about his duties as usual, and while thus engaged was attacked with severe angina pectoris, which resulted a few moments later in his death. Mr. M. came to our city in the fall of 1876, and although an invalid he was known to a large number of our citizens, in whose hearts his memory will ever be green. His funeral will be attended from his late residence, corner of Tejon and St. Adam streets, Monday morning, at 10 o'clock.

Personal.

Mr. E. R. Hoyt, of Beaver Dam, Wis., arrived in town yesterday morning on a visit to his son, F. R. Hoyt.

Mr. C. A. Clark left the city yesterday for Chicago. Mr. Clark leaves with the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

Lawyers East & Reed, attorneys of the A. T. & S. F. R. R. were passengers on yesterday's northern bound express.

Mr. R. J. Weathers, passed through the city yesterday, on a "special" bound for Denver.

Mr. Allen Vane and lady, of Monument Park, are guests at the National.

Mrs. Blaisdell, the actress, returned from her tour of the city yesterday.

Mr. A. T. Gage and Mr. G. H. Stewart, of the Beebe House, Manitou, are at present stopping at the National.
